Cleveland Fire Kills 1, Hurts 11; 17 Are Rescued

Woman Tosses 5-Year-Old Child Into Arms of Cab Driver After Explosion Shatters 28-Room House.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A flash fire raced through the 28-room Knickerbocker Manor early today, killing Mrs. Lillie Somers, 68, a tenant, and injuring at least 11 persons.

Fire Chief James E. Nimmo said many saved their lives by jumping from the first floor of the three-story uptown rooming house. Two cab drivers and customers of a nearby restaurant rescued others.

Seventeen were rescued and 11 hospitalized. Hugo Hamfeld jumped from the third story and was severely hurt.

An explosion in the furnace room in the early morning hours tore an enormous hole in one side of the structure which enabled rescuers to get the roomers out safely.

Child Thrown Into Arms.

The cab drivers—Robert Martin, 27, and Joseph Gajdos, 31—were sitting in their autos across the street when the blast occurred.

From a burning staircase a child was thrown into the arms of Harry Zelman. Zelman said "I went into the first floor after cab drivers kicked in the door and found the staircase had begun to collapse from the flames.

"Joe and I ran over to the house and kicked in the door. There was a lot of plaster in the hall. We went around banging on doors and yelling to people to come out and others came running in to help.

"I just happened to be looking that way when all of a sudden there was a reddish, pinkish glow all along the lower part of it,' he said. Then there was a deep boom.

"I saw a woman at the second floor with a child in her arms. She didn't say a word.

Staircase Made Well.

"She just looked at me and tossed the child down over the bannister. I caught it. It was a little girl not more than five years old. I carried her out and gave her to a fireman. The last I saw of the woman she was walking toward the front of the building."

Knickerbocker Manor was once a Euclid avenue mansion in the 8300 block dating back some 45 years. Sixty by one hundred feet in size, it was converted some time ago into a rooming house. It has a stone foundation with sections of brick and frame added later for the conversion.

Nimmo said a collapsed staircase made "a natural well" for the fire. The blaze was brought under control in several hours.

Passersby dissuaded a number of persons from jumping from the second and third floor, cautioning them that firemen were on the way.

Mount Sinai hospital gave this partial list of injured:

Miss Elizabeth Vogt, 65, shock, bruises.

Melvin Rogers, 48, minor injuries.

Mrs. Melvin Rogers, 45, minor injuries.

Clarence Randalls, 33, face and hands burned.

CIO OPPOSES PORTAL BILLS

Challenges Constitutionality of Proposed Measures.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The CIO today challenged the constitutionality of legislative proposals to outlaw its claims for $4,000,000,000 in portal-to-portal pay.

The challenge came as part of a broad CIO counter-attack before a senate judiciary sub-committee holding hearings on the legislation.

CIO counsel Lee Pressman, who has masterminded the lawsuits for portal-to-portal pay, led a procession of witnesses into the senate caucus room to present the CIO case.

Pressman was protesting against bills which would throw the portal-to-portal suits out of court.

Pressman said the bills "present implications which are catastrophic to the public welfare."

"The proposals depart from our most deeply cherished legal traditions and constitutional limitations," he said. " . . . we submit and firmly believe that these measures violate the principles of our constitution.

"Proposed as they are at this time they can only serve to implant in workers the apprehension and fear that the present congress does not propose to play the game according to the rules where workers' rights are concerned."

Pressman argued that the pending bills went beyond the portal-to-portal issue and threatened to destroy the wage-hour law. The measures were sponsored by Sens. Alexander Wiley, (R., Wis.), and Homer Capehart, (R., Ind.).

TAX EXTENDER FACES FIGHT

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Republican plans to speed the excise tax extension bill through the house by unanimous consent ran into limited but determined opposition today.

The bill would extend for an indefinite period the higher wartime excises on such luxury items as furs, jewelry, luggage, liquor and transportation.

It was approved unanimously yesterday by the house ways and means committee, and Chairman Harold Knutson, (R., Minn.), said he hoped to get it through the house by unanimous consent early next week.

The opposition came from Rep. Donald L. O'Toole, (D., N. Y.), who said he "most certainly" would object to considering the bill under the unanimous consent rule.

Republican and Democratic leaders have agreed that no controversial legislation will be considered next week, and O'Toole's opposition might delay consideration of the excise bill for 10 days or more.

Although a single objection would be enough to delay passage of the bill for several days, several other Democrats also were reported ready to offer opposition. They object to extending the higher excises on individual items such as railroad tickets and telephone bills.

President Truman asked congress for a one-year extension of the wartime rates which now are scheduled to expire on June 30. The ways and means committee bill would make the extension indefinite.

LEWIS LEADS; BALL COUNTERS

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Sen. Joseph H. Ball (R Minn.), and John L. Lewis swapped verbal punches today over the latter's proposal to investigate the congressionel authors of "anti-labor bills."

Lewis' United Mine Workers Journal suggested a 10-man labor-management committee to quiz the sponsors of labor legislation in public hearings and said "Ball should get first call."

The Minnesota senator, author of several pending labor measures, promptly branded the UMW proposal as "phoney" and "a publicity gag." He added:

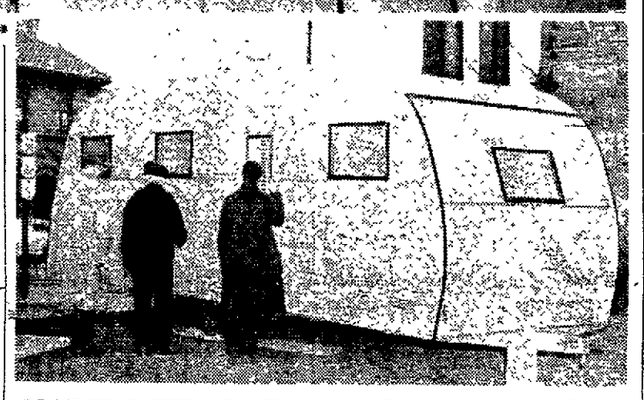
"I've never made any secret of my position and views. And I think Lewis has enough friends who can ask any questions they want to on the floor of the senate."

The UMW journal declared that Ball's legislative proposals are "not based upon practical knowledge and understanding, but upon personal hatred of certain labor leaders." The publication said:

"He should be forced to explain to American labor and American industry just how his proposed legislative measures would operate and what the outcome in a practical way would be."

One of the bills introduced by Ball would outlaw industrywide collective bargaining. The senator indicated that congressional action on it should be possible about March 1—a month before expiration of the coal truce.

County Buys 20 Trailers for Vets; Work on 24 Home Units Suspended



TRAILER HOMES—Miss Mary Grace Pagani, top left, and Mrs. E. J. Penrose, bookkeeper and clerk, respectively, in the county treasurer's office, try out the large seat in the first of 20 modern trailer coaches purchased by county commissioners for veterans' homes. Several passersby, below, inspect one of the trailers parked on the lawn of the courthouse.

Richland county commissioners today had contracted for 20 trailer coaches for the county veterans' housing project, while the Federal Public Housing Authority announced temporary suspension of work on 24 veterans' housing units in Mansfield.

While the county was preparing the auto trailer homes for veterans, the city was pondering the question of financing completion of the 24 home units on which work has been suspended by the government because of lack of funds.

One trailer coach was displayed on the courthouse lawn today and others are expected soon with the possibility that delivery of the entire lot may be made by Feb. 15, C. L. Shoup, chairman of the county board, reported.

Contract price for the trailers was $41,720 with the McCall Coach company of Springfield getting the order. Cost per unit is $2,086, Shoup said.

County Needs Site.

Where to locate the trailers was the question foremost in the commissioners' minds today. A lengthy discussion of the problem was held by the commissioners this morning, Shoup said, but no decision was reached.

Rental fees to be charged occupants have not been worked out yet by the commissioners, but it was learned that at other similar projects rents have ranged from $12 to $25 per month.

The commissioners favored the trailer coaches in preference to houses when the speedy completion of the four such units at Shiloh bogged down due to the difficulty of obtaining plumbing equipment.

The trailer coaches are of two rooms, 27 feet long and 84 inches wide inside and contain two double beds, by converting the large couch across one end into a bed.

The trailers are equipped with a stainless steel kitchen sink, aluminum faucet, ice box, sink cabinet, two wardrobe closets, dropleaf table, two built-in magazine racks, oil heating stove, two-burner electric range, electric oven and a chest of drawers.

Four of the units have been promised to the Colored American Legion Post 72 and location of them also awaits the selection of a site by that post, Shoup said.

The county purchased the trailers with $64,149 allocated here under the state emergency veterans' housing legislation.

Work on 24 of 50 veterans housing units in Mansfield has been suspended until it can be determined whether the government or the Mansfield housing authority will finance the completion of the units.

A shortage of government funds for housing, brought about by increased material and labor costs, has required temporary suspension of some veterans' housing projects throughout the country, the Federal Public Housing Authority reported.

The fund shortage may result in local governments being required to complete "suspended" portions of projects, the FPHA said.

Edward R. Friday, secretary of the Mansfield authority, said the agency hopes to have information by Wednesday as to whether the government will pay for completion of all 50 units.

26 To Be Completed.

Already under way are 26 units which the government is to complete. These are located on the Childrens' Home property and are about 18 percent complete, the government reports. No work has been done on 24 suspended units on Grace street.

The city has allocated $15,000 to the authority for use in connection with the housing project. Only a limited amount of the fund was to be used, however, for the government originally was to finance the completion of all units.

FLYER SOUGHT IN SLAYING OF 'BLACK DAHLIA'

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — The manhunt for the sex maniac who tortured and butchered Elizabeth Short, pretty 22-year-old brunette known as the "Black Dahlia," turned today to a handsome, red-headed ex-marine flyer called "Red" and "Bob." They learned the suspect now was a "supervisory pilot" for an airline.

Dorothy French, a San Diego theater cashier, revealed that the ill-fated girl apparently left San Diego with the flyer, after receiving a wire from him, eight days before her cut-in-two nude body was found in a vacant lot in southwest Los Angeles.

The "Black Dahlia" lived in Miss French's Pacific beach home for a month until she was asked to leave. The cashier met her in an all-night theater and took her into her home when she discovered that Miss Short was broke and had no place to stay.

* * *

Telegram Is Clue.

A day before Miss Short left she received this telegram, apparently in response to word she had sent to the ex-marine flyer:

"Wait. I'll be down for you. Red."

The wire was traced to Huntington Park, Los Angeles suburb. There it was learned that the message, instead of being written in ordinary handwriting, had been carefully printed.

The girl's father, Cleo Short, was located in Los Angeles today, but could contribute nothing to the solution of the crime. He said that his daughter lived with him for a time in Vallejo, Calif., about five years ago and that he hasn't seen her since. He has been separated from the girl's mother, Mrs. Phoebe Short of Medford, Mass., for 20 years.

Mrs. Short is en route to Los Angeles to claim her daughter's body.

Police tracing the life of the slain girl described her as a restless young woman, constantly on the move, frequently broke and trying to borrow money and out of work most of the time.

She became known as the "Black Dahlia" in Long Beach, where she wore revealing black dresses to set off her raven-black hair piled high on her head.

Pinned Under His Car, Driver Seriously Hurt

Pinned under his overturned automobile near Mansfield for an undetermined period of time, Ernest Hamilton, 22, of Galion, was in serious condition today in General hospital.

Hamilton's wrecked car was found by a passing motorist about 4:30 a. m. today on U. S. Route 30-S two miles west of Mansfield. The car had crashed into a utility pole, state patrolmen said.

The motorist, Tom McNew, 600 Park avenue west, notified the Jones funeral home which dispatched an ambulance to the scene.

Hamilton was released and given first aid before he was taken to General hospital. He suffered a skull fracture, broken left leg, and multiple lacerations, the hospital reported.

The Jones funeral home said Hamilton apparently had been thrown from the car when the accident occurred, and was trapped when the vehicle toppled over on him.

The state patrol, which investigated the mishap, could not determine how long Hamilton was pinned beneath the car. Hamilton was unconscious when found, and remained in a coma at the hospital today.

State patrolmen said he apparently was driving by himself. The pole was snapped off, and the car was a total loss, officers said.

STATE LIQUOR CHAIRMAN QUITS

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Mrs. Maude McQuate of Cleveland today resigned as chairman of the state board of liquor control, but agreed to remain a member of the four-member board.

In a letter to Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, Mrs. McQuate wrote:

"Realizing the appointment of the chairman of the Ohio state board of liquor control is one of the prerogatives of the governor and wishing you to feel free to appoint the member of the board whom you prefer, I hereby tender my resignation as chairman."

Mrs. McQuate was appointed to the chairmanship Oct. 10, 1945, by former Governor Lausche. She had replaced acting Chairman William Hess of Cincinnati. Mrs. McQuate is listed as a Republican.

The other two members of the board are Frank Krebs of Dayton and Richard Lindemann of Delphos, both Democrats.

CITY'S COMMUNITY CHEST GETS PLAN FOR CREATING FAMILY WELFARE UNIT

An outline for determining the need for a family welfare agency in Mansfield was submitted to Community Chest executives and juvenile and home service officials yesterday by Lyman Ford, head of the health and welfare planning division of the Community Chests and Councils of America.

The agency which would serve as a family and children's consultation service, was recommended by the Community Chest trustees at the annual meeting Thursday. A committee to study its need here will be appointed by Fred B. Hout, president of the Community Chest.

* * *

THE CONFERENCE yesterday was attended by Hout; Jane Williams, executive secretary of the Chest; Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer and Mrs. Bess Augsberger, executive secretary of the Richland County Red Cross chapter. Judge Cramer and Mrs. Augsberger were invited as interested citizens.

Ford said the plan for the agency would deal with every behavior and adjustment problem which affects the home. The agency would be available for consultation on problems of homes, threatenel by separation; problems between parents and children; inadequate budgets, and basic causes for alcoholism.

* * *

STEPS WHICH the committee will follow in the survey, outlined by Ford, are:

1. Investigation of the need for the agency here, and visits to juvenile and common pleas court, welfare agencies, Community Chest agencies, school authorities and city police.

2. Learn if there is any agency, public or private, which could be strengthened to meet the overall need for both privileged and under-privileged families and individuals.

Ford said if an agency already operating could meet the requirements it would be wise to put added strength behind it. If such an agency can't be found, the family welfare agency would be best operated as a separate unit, he said.

3. Write Family Service Association of America in New York City for statistics and plan of procedure for such an agency.

Youth Burned When Cigaret Ignites Bed

Robert Abrams, 20, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Abrams, 72 Glenwood boulevard, was overcome by smoke and received minor burns early today when his bed caught on fire.

Firemen said the mattress apparently caught fire from a lighted cigaret. Abrams was discovered unconscious in the bedroom by his father.

He was taken to General hospital by ambulance, and released after treatment. The blaze was confined to the mattress and bedclothes.

MORE SPACE FOR PARKING WOULD HELP!

Sufficient Public Or Private Facilities Would Ease City Traffic Muddle.

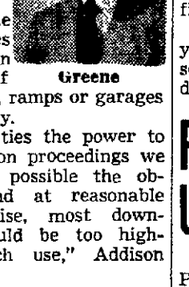
(This is the seventh and last of a series of articles on Mansfield's traffic and highway problems.)

By PHILIP GREENE

While a great part of Mansfield's traffic headache lies in the channeling of vehicles within and through the city, many observers see a partial cure in providing sufficient parking facilities.

State Senator Evert Addison of Columbus thinks parking facilities are vitally needed and that their creation is the responsibility of local officials.

"All the cities need, besides the will to solve their own problems, is the power. With that thought in mind I have introduced into the senate a bill to empower municipalities to condemn land for the location of parking facilities," Addison says.



Greene

He said the bill contemplates the construction of any type of facilities — lots, ramps or garages —desired locally.

"By giving cities the power to use condemnation proceedings we hope to make possible the obtaining of land at reasonable prices. Otherwise, most downtown land would be too high-priced for such use," Addison said.

The idea of sufficient off-street parking space, in order to speed up moving traffic, is a favorite one of Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals. He has repeatedly advocated the construction of garages.

"Without a change in the physical elements, such as width and number of streets, number of parking places and number of ve-

ACTION LEAVES COURT TO ACT ON SUCCESSOR

Resignation Follows Swearing-In of Lieutenant-Governor.

ATLANTA —(AP)— Ellis Arnall announced today that his resignation as governor of Georgia was effective as of 10:50 a. m. today, when Lieut. Gov. M. E. Thompson was sworn in.

Arnall said in a prepared statement: "Having discharged my constitutional duty as governor of Georgia, and the lieutenant governor having qualified, my resignation as governor became effective shortly after 10:50 o'clock this day.

"The procedures clearly enable the lieutenant-governor to become acting governor, vested with the full, absolute powers of government until the people of Georgia can elect a governor to fill the unexpired term.

"I am confident that this action will meet with the approval of a vast majority of the people of the state. Likewise I am certain that the courts will uphold the constitution of Georgia and that elections by the people, democracy, law and order will be sustained."

(The United Press said it was believed, however, that Thompson would quietly preside over the senate and not make any effort to act as governor pending court settlement of the dispute over the legislature's election of Herman Talmadge as governor.)

Meanwhile, Herman Talmadge and his supporters continued to hold physical possession of the state capitol and the governor's mansion.

'Just Begun To Fight'.

Arnall motored to Atlanta from his home, 40 miles southwest of Atlanta, prepared to bring suit against Atlanta's Fulton National Bank if checks issued by his executive secretary yesterday are rejected for payment.

"I have just begun to fight," he declared.

Arnall appealed to the citizenry to discuss the issue with their legislators and declared that "free elections by the people will be done away with unless you fight for your rights."

"It is your fight x x x it is your future. My interest is unselfish," he said in a radio address.

POPE PRAISES U. S. GENEROSITY

VATICAN CITY —(AP)— Pope Pius XII, addressing a group of 10 American newspaper editors and writers who arrived in Rome yesterday to start an army-conducted tour of Europe, said today that "ruthless persecution of men's civil and religious rights has not ceased" in the post-war world.

The newspapermen received included Dwight E. Young, editor, Dayton (Ohio) Journal-Herald.

The pontiff praised American generosity in aiding Europe's war sufferers.

Yet Americans who came to the assistance "of the victims who survived the appalling holocaust . . . little thought," the Pope added, "that the food and clothing which they were so lavishly shipping overseas would be in some countries tagged with a price of adherence to a political party."

"Denial of men's civil and religious rights has not ceased," he continued. "Ruthless persecution of men consciences has not abated. Nor is it surprising. But it is tragic. . . .

"But one dare not be discouraged. Leaders will not be wanting, they are not wanting, men of sterling character, not self-seeking but genuinely devoted to the physical and social betterment of all classes, who in the light of Christian principles will gladly and effectively recognize . . . that religion and morality are the indespensible supports of political prosperity . . ."

SOVIET ASSAILS VATICAN

MOSCOW—(AP)—The Soviet foreign affairs weekly New Times, in a new attack on the role of the Vatican in world affairs, today denounced the Christmas message of Pope Pius XII as a restatement of "the old reactionary policy of the Vatican beneath phrases of love, forgiveness and mercy."

400 FEARED DEAD IN CHINA TRAGEDY

SHANGHAI— (U.P.) —A wooden Chinese ship carrying more than 1,000 passengers sank today at the mouth of the Whangpoo river 20 miles from Shanghai after colliding with a tug. First Chinese reports said between 400 and 500 persons were drowned.

The vessel — the Chikiang, named after the 14th U. S. Army Air Forces base in western Hunan province where Chinese and Japanese armies fought in the last battle of the war—was bound for North Kiangshi.

Many of the passengers were refugees returning to their homes in areas recently reoccupied by Nationalist armies.

Flames Feed On Women's Selfishness

ST. CLAIRSVILLE — (INS) — The Frank Robinson family of St. Clairsville owned a single piece of furniture today—thanks to a party line conversation.

A neighbor, Sherman Lyons, noticed the Robinson house afire and tried to telephone an alarm. Two women were conversing and, Lyons said, despite his request that he be permitted to report an emergency, they insisted:

"We are paying for our telephones and we intend to use them as long as we want to."

By the time firemen finally arrived, the house and all of the household goods except one piece of furniture had burned.

Clare Booth Luce Advocates Four-Year Term In Congress

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK—(INS)—Two terms in congress have made Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce a staunch advocate of a four-year congressional term of office.

The former congressional "glamour girl," who did not seek reelection to the house last November, said today she is convinced that both the nation's electorate and its congressmen would benefit greatly by doubling the present two-year term. She declared:

"Congressmen now start running for re-election almost from the moment of their election. With a four-year term, congressmen would only feel impelled to run for office one year out of four instead of one year out of two. The present system is hard on both congressmen and on the people, who don't get the best out of their representatives in a two-year term."

The two-year system may be wrong, but not the congressmen, in Mrs. Luce's estimation. She has retired from congress lavish in her praise of congress in general. She believes congress to be the final stronghold of democracy in America. The beautiful blonde playwright, author and politician said she would have no harsh or cruel words to write about congress. On the contrary, she thinks they are very fine Joes, decent, intelligent and hard-working.

In her apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria, she pointed out that congress is the least expensive branch of the government. She said:

"Few persons realize that it costs less than to run many minor government agencies, for instance, the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

"Do you realize, too, that congress is the only agency of government without a press agent? Certainly, no one can deny that the White House has a half dozen. So does every government agency. Every Democratic and Republican big-wig and tin-horn has his press agent."

Mrs. Luce came away from Washington tremendously impressed with the wide range of specialists who comprise congress. She found there men who were experts in many subjects, including science, law, medicine, agriculture and industry. She said:

"In that group of 435 persons there is a magnificent cross section of American intelligence. You will find no other group of 435 persons who are more solid and responsible citizens. Unfortunately, the few villains make the headlines. One Bilbo, for instance, makes the public forget the 90-odd reputable men in the senate."

Mrs. Luce had but one criticism in general to make of the nation's elected legislators and she had a reason to offer for this failing. She said:

"The quality of thinking among congressmen is not very good. It's just about on a par with that in the White House and in other government agencies. Congressmen ought to have time to think and to read. But they are worked almost beyond physical endurance. If they do have a little leisure time, they are too exhausted to do anything but rest, I know.

"The sad thing is that people who have authority in this country have no time to think and people who have time to think have no authority."

Now that she is out of congress, Mrs. Luce's own plans call for a good bit of writing in the immediate future. She is going first to Mepkin, the Luce plantation in South Carolina. There she plans to finish a book of which the first few chapters are already completed.

Because she is a bit superstitious about the matter, she refused to discuss the subject matter of the new book, except to add that it is not political and not about congress. Someday, she may do a book about congress, but this is not it.

She also has a play in mind, but not a word of it is yet on paper.

A COOLING OFF

There are times when Reddy Fox enjoys a run with Hounds, matching his wits and feet against their wits and noses. He makes of it a game, an exciting game. Mrs. Reddy often joins him, each relieving the other ahead of the Dogs so that neither gets too tired and the Dogs never know it. That is fun.

But it wasn't like that now. No, indeed; it wasn't that way now. Mrs. Reddy had run until she was almost ready to drop. Reddy had slipped in between her and the Dogs just in time to save her. Now he was beginning to feel tired and a little anxious. A smart trick to break his trail and so get rid of those Dodgs had failed. He didn't know why. It was a clever trick that had never failed him before. He couldn't understand why it had failed now. It was discouraging. You see he didn't know that some one had interfered, that a boy had seen him crossing a field while the Dogs were vainly trying to find that trail, and had led the Dogs over to that field and put them on it. The trick was as good as Reddy had thought it was, but he couldn't know that now. It had been a shock to hear those eager, triumphant voices behind him again.

"I don't know a better trick," thought he as he started across the Green Meadows toward the Green Forest. "If Laughing Brook wasn't covered with ice I might fool them with a water trick, but there is no chance for that now."

Perhaps it was thinking of Laughing Brook that reminded him of the Big River. He stopped and stared over toward it. He suddenly remembered something. In places along the Big River there was open water, for there had been a few days of warm weather. It had melted the snow on the Green Meadows and other open places. In one place there was open water in the Smiling Pool and around it the ice was thin. Perhaps it was the same way at the Big River. Anyway, it would do no harm to go over there.

Blacky the Crow, who had been flying after him but hadn't yet caught up with him, saw him turn and head across the Green Meadows toward the Big River. "What is he up to now?" thought Blacky. "There is no chance to fool those Dogs over there. He can't even keep out of their sight unless he crosses the Big River on the ice. I wonder if that is what he is planning to do."

Blacky, who had been intending to go home to the Green Forest, turned toward the Big River. He stopped in a tree on the bank. He could see far up and far down the Big River. It was mostly covered with ice excepting where the water ran too swiftly to freeze, but there were two or three open places, one a long, narrow lane of open water leading back from the swift water. It ran back for quite a distance and was in near the bank only a few feet out.

Reddy had reached the Big River below this place and had run along the shore so that now he was opposite the open lane. He stood looking back the way he had come, listening to the steady baying of the Hounds. They were coming fast, for the scent was warm and easy to follow. There was a crafty look on Reddy's face. Blacky leaned forward as he watched expectantly.

"I don't know what he will do. Whatever he is planning, it will be good," thought he.

Just then the two Dogs came over the bank and turned up along the shore, their heads down as they followed the strong scent. Reddy still stood there, watching them.

"What is he waiting for? Why doesn't he run?" thought Blacky.

The Dogs were very near him before one of them raised his head and saw Reddy. This was what Reddy was waiting for. He turned and with those Dogs almost at his heels, ran out on the ice straight for that narrow lane of open water, made a beautiful leap over it and landed lightly on the ice beyond. It is doubtful if those Dogs ever saw the water until they were at the edge of it. One tried to stop but couldn't. He slid into the water with a great splash. The other jumped, but the ice on the other side was too thin and broke under him. That water was cold. They forgot all about Reddy Fox. They scrambled out on shore, shook themselves and, shivering, started for home. Running would soon warm them up. Reddy Fox stood on the ice in the middle of the Big River watching them and grinning. Blacky the Crow chuckled.

The Music Corner

By MARY HOFFMAN

At the December meeting of the Ohio Music Educators association, one of the speakers was Miss Vanett Lawler, of the Pan American union. Miss Lawler has spent much time in the past few years in South America, and few people know as much about music conditions in the southern continent as she does. She has visited practically all the music colleges, met all the composers, and has discussed with the music leaders of the various countries the music situation in their countries and ours.

She reminded us that we and the Latin American countries were alike in that we are colonial peoples who look for leadership in the field of cultural activities to the mother countries. This is not true in politics. In our own country we are just now getting away from a slavish following of Europe in art, in music, in dress. It has not been so long since our singers had to train in Europe and come back with Italian or Russian names in order to win a hearing.

The countries of South America have done very much as we. Children of wealthy parents were sent to Europe to complete their education. French was the language of the aristocracy. Their concert artists came from Europe just as ours did. Neither of us thought of borrowing from the other, save in isolated cases.

South America differs from us, according to Miss Lawler, in that organized musical culture belongs to the aristocracy, and folk music to the masses. There is no middle class. In our country, it is mainly the middle class who are entering the field of music education.

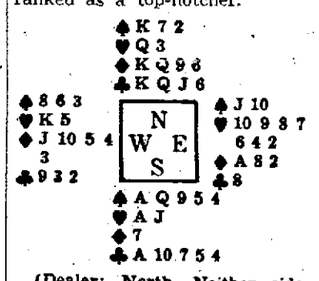
Music education in the United States has been developed as a profession as in no other part of the world. For this reason the rest of the world is looking to us for leadership in organizing music education in their own countries. The ministry of education in France and Hungary have written asking how to organize music education in their countries. Latin America also wants our help.

The countries south of the border are seeking help in teaching methods, techniques, professional organizations. Miss Lawler said that when she was asked how they might organize she told them about the Ohio plan, for Ohio was a pioneer in organized music education and still leads. Chile is starting a news bulletin, using our Ohio Triad (state music educators' magazine) as a pattern.

An Argentine composer who has been studying here the yast year was asked by Miss Lawler what had impressed him most. He mentioned the Berkshire festival, one of the finest music camps in the world; and the national conference in Cleveland. Of this latter, he found the most inspiring was Ohio day, when 2,500 students in a vast chorus, band and string orchestra, appeared at the Public auditorium. Some day he will be telling his people about the singing of Ohio's youths. Our thanks to you, young people of Richland county, who helped make that music, for a grand job!

Barclay On Bridge

THERE ARE plenty of brilliant players in any game. But not one is so good that he can afford to loaf and still expect to win. In bridge that applies mainly to the traditional sin of acting without thinking. The player who likes to impress his partner and opponents with his speed of brain, and who therefore makes the first move that comes into his mind—without first weighing the alternatives—will never deserve to be ranked as a top-notcher.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	6 ♣

That was a terrific compliment to North by South, who considered his more experienced partner a much better player of the cards than himself. South should have forced on his second turn with 3-Spades instead of hopping into a club small slam as he did. That, as it developed, would have led to his getting into 6-Spades. But the difference in score possible was very slight, as the slam should be easy in either black suit.

But North appreciated the compliment so much that he wanted to justify it by a display of speed. So, after East led the heart 10, and North recalled East's heart bid, he decided it would be impressive to show South how he could read cards. Feeling certain East had the heart K for his bid, North played the J from dummy. He was panic stricken when West won with the K, and disgusted with himself after a diamond got returned to the A setting him.

No matter whether North thought East had the heart K or not, he should have come in with the A and then led clubs followed by spades. He could have discarded his own losing heart on the dummy's spades, even if the suit had not broken, as he could have ruffed it once to set up one card for a single discard.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, January 19.

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows a continuation of the peculiar undercurrents in which subtle or subconscious forces and faculties may be under exceptional stress or stimuli. And while this may be a fitting attitude for Sabbath vocations or avocations with spiritual factors, inspiring to ideals, fancies, creative ability, beauty, charm and magnetic attraction uppermost, any unrealistic effort at workaday plans or purposes may invite defeat or regret.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of curious or peculiar adventures or experiences. This, born of the predominance of ideals, faculties or forces keyed to the finer promptings of beauty, charm, imagination's magnetic attractions, intuitive or psychological impulses, in which rational and commonplace conditions have little appeal. With artistic or creative urges properly directed into constructive channels, there might be exceptional gratification, but purely objective plans might be menaced by illusions, erratic or emotional gestures.

A child born on this day might be inspired by unique love of beauty, charm, spiritual urges or psychological promptings, but with little inclination to the realistic patterns of life.

Tangerine Pie Stars On Winter Party Menu

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS, AP Food Editor

For a holiday, or just for the fun of doing well by your friends, simple entertaining is the best kind. Still, you want your simplest dishes to have a party touch. So I'd like to suggest a menu which will fill the bill in every respect.

MENU FOR PARTY SUPPER
Meal-in-a-Dish
Quick-Frozen Peas
Tangerine Eggnog Pie
Meal-in-a-Dish

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1⅔ cups canned button mushrooms
- 1⅓ cups dried chipped beef
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1½ cups cream or top milk
- ⅔ cup chopped ripe olives

Buttered toast or baking powder biscuits

Melt butter or margarine in a skillet. Add mushrooms, beef (which has been soaked half an hour in water and then well drained), flour, paprika and Worcestershire sauce and cook, stirring constantly until mushrooms are heated through. Add cream and cook and stir until slightly thick. Remove from heat, add olives and stir to blend. Serve hot over toast or biscuits. Serves four to six.

Tangerines are one of the nicest of citrus fruits and they're plentiful this year. They're not only good to eat in the hand, but can be used in more ways than most of us think. This pie is easy to put together, and tangerines are the easiest of fruits to handle—their skins zip off and the sections fall apart most conveniently.

Tangerine Eggnog Pie.

- 1 tablespoon plain gelatin
- ¼ cup tangerine juice
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon grated tangerine rind
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ½ cup heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons sherry or sherry flavoring
- ½ cup tangerine sections, cut in half
- 1 9-inch baked pie shell
- 2 tablespoons finely shaved sweet chocolate

Soften gelatin in tangerine juice. Beat egg yolks slightly; combine with tangerine rind and ⅓ cup of the sugar in top of double boiler. Cook over hot (not boiling) water until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to congeal. Beat egg whites stiff and gradually beat in remaining sugar. Whip cream stiff and fold into chilled gelatin mixture with beaten egg whites, sherry or flavoring and tangerine sections. Pile mixture into baked pie shell, garnish top with chocolate and more tangerine sections and chill until firm.

Drive carefully tomorrow—help reduce traffi accidents in Mansfield and vicinity.

One reader is considerably disturbed becau he can't remember what superstition it is that is assoated with thunder storms in January.

"Restrained optimism" is now being advised a mental attitude—which probably means that everythi will turn out all right if everybody decides to get to ork—and keep at it.

Talmadge Blight Hangs Over Gergia

GEORGIA, one of the fiercest contenders for "stas' rights," is now giving an exhibition of unreadiness forceptance of even the most fundamental principle of docracy—orderly acceptance of majority rule.

In any other state—with the possible exceptic of Mississippi—such fantastic goings-on as have been rted from the quite modern appearing capital city of Atla during the past few days would have been unthinkabl

It will be recalled that the late Eugene Talge was elected governor of Georgia last fall, by a mindy of the state's qualified voters. He died, however, bef time for his inauguration, and now his son, Herman, is dming the governorship on the strength of a few hundd write-in votes which he received at the election.

By vote of the Georgia general assembly, a almadge-controlled body, young Talmadge's claim has th far been upheld—thus placing his several hundred vote above the decisive majority given M. E. Thompson for th office of lieutenant-governor, whose candidacy was suppod by outgoing Governor Ellis Arnall and whose contenn is that Thompson is his rightful successor.

Under orderly procedure such a question would be no more than a matter for court determination, but the cracteristic hoodlumism of Talmadge supporters has cropd out in connection with violent seizure of the govern's office, including malicious destruction of property.

The whole unsavory brawl is heading toward le Georgia supreme court for decision. Meanwhile there is realization that Governor Arnall has given that backward ate a progressive government during his four years in offi, in sharp contrast to Talmadge's bigoted, backward administrations.

Crashes Retard Air Travel Appe

FREQUENCY of airplane crashes—and the higher centage of fatalities in each of them—is becoming a serous factor in estimates of probable growth of this mean of transportation. Immediate reaction has been a duction in passenger demand for plane accommodations, a a major air line has laid off 150 co-pilots and junior pilo in adapting its schedules to the reduced demand for sea

It is also noted that international air trav has been affected almost as much as domestic service, because of public reaction to the appearance of danger inved.

Uncertainty of scheduled air trips, because of bd weather, also enters into choice of transportation facilis, and it was noted that during the Christmas and New Yes holidays thousands of prospective plane passengers had to turn to the railroads at the last minute—which induc many of them to decide not to rely on plane reservations in the future for "must" trips.

Some economic observers hold that airlines, spite wartime growth, are still in the fledgling stage, and ve many problems to work out before realizing their full 'pentialities as a safe and dependable means of transportatio

One observer comments: "Air travel is in a phase not unlike railroading in the '90's, when a regular corner on Page 1 was devoted to the latest in rail wrecks."

While it will probably never be possible to move all travel risks, whether on land, water, or in the air, cannot be doubted that recent plane disasters tend to influence many people to choose some slower means of trsportation—with greater chances of arriving at their desnation.

Ford's Price-Reduction Experiment

ANNOUNCED reduction in the price of Ford cs must be regarded as an experiment by which it is ntended to reveal whether or not production volume can be fficiently increased to permit a return of low-priced aumobiles—with a small profit on each, rather than continuy to raise prices to meet higher production costs.

Experimentation has been a trait of the Ford family for many years, including profit-sharing and minmum wage plans, and the early introduction of cars under the $1,000 mark.

In announcing the price cut as a "shock treatmt," Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motor company, took the realistic attitude that "large markets begin to disappear when prices rise," and this is particularly applible to the motor industry, which has been built to monstus proportions by the mass production which has placed ome form of "individual transportation" within the means of millions of Americans.

It should not be overlooked that this price-redtion move is being made in the face of a record of heavoperating losses during 1946, and such a policy—however commendable it may be—cannot be continued unless producn volume can be increased and operating costs reduced to the extent of turning losses into reasonable profits.

Much will depend, of course, on the general prie structure, as applied to other commodities, and unless the can be a gradual scaling down of all prices which enter to "living costs," further demands for wage increases could sily upset any such good intentions as are being evidenced b the Ford experiment

Much Talk, Little Knowledge

WHAT IS the Wagner Labor Act? Everybody lks about it, but Dr. George Gallup finds from his late poll that very few have any idea of what they are talkin about.

Asked what the law contains, only 19 per cent had even a general idea. Twelve per cent were totally wrong, and 69 per cent were honest enough to say that they did not know. It will be interesting to see if congress is much better informed.

Will Durant, the philosopher, advises wom: "To be happy, be active—even if it means two hours of housework a day"—but where does he get the idea that adequate housework can be confined to two hours a day?

It now appears that, in the expression, "N worth a tinker's dam," the final word may be properly spled either without or with an "n"—if there's anyone w cared to know.

SKY WRITING

Republicans In Congress Start Shying Away From Extremists

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON—In his own quiet way, and without fanfare and beating of drums, it is apparent that President Truman has put Republicans in congress somewhat on the defensive.

It was but natural that Republicans, coming back into power after so long a time, should blow off steam and go a bit overboard in celebrating.

It was but natural that some should over-estimate the so-called "mandate" of the election and misinterpret it in some particulars.

In the flush of victory, some exaggerated talk about the million or two million that would be fired from the government might be expected. Also about plentiful tax reduction. And it was natural, too, that nearly everybody would pitch a labor-regulatory bill into the hopper.

The file of such measures in Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's office now takes three volumes. It was anticipated some of the "solutions" would be extreme, and they include some from Democrats who jumped on for the ride as well as from Republicans.

President Truman, because of his position, had the first say in his various messages to congress. They were moderate and careful, full of rather plain and hard facts, and altogether his performance seemingly has produced a good reaction among the people.

This now is beginning to percolate back to congress in the numerous ways such reaction gets back to congress. The effect is obvious in the more cautious approach by the Republican leadership, a stop-look-listen attitude.

It might be said here that wiser heads in the Republican leadership were inclined toward caution all along and probably are privately grateful to the president for his noise-abatement ordinance.

The president's plain-speaking on taxes has been followed, as we see, not only by a sudden reverse on luxury excise taxes, which Republicans now have decided to continue, but a damper on the proposal by Rep. Knutson (R., Minn.), ways and means committee chairman, for a flat 20 per cent cut in personal income taxes. This contains political dynamite—for one thing, in its extent and its cost, which might affect plans to reduce expenditures: and, for another, in its failure to take sufficient account of the small taxpayer, the biggest voter.

Some Republicans are well aware of this. Democrats, it is learned, are planning to open up on the Knutson plan and, if it ever got before the house as it stands, which is doubtful now, some on the Republican side would find it hard to vote against Democratic amendments to give the small taxpayer a better break.

The cautious approach has extended also to labor legislation. At first there was talk of pushing some general bill through promptly. The rush act has been called off.

In this respect it is significant that Senator Taft (R., O.) has announced extended hearings by his labor and welfare committee to which representatives of all interests involved will be invited. The house labor committee also plans extensive hearings.

Republican leaders, too, are backing away fast from extreme proposals, such as the bills by Senator Ball (R., Minn.) to outlaw the closed shop and to prevent industry-wide bargaining.

Senator Taft is frankly dubious about such measures and Harold Stassen, the only announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, disassociated himself from them at a recent press conference. He thinks they, as well as the general tendency in congress, is to go too far. Senator Ball owed his original appointment to the senate to Mr. Stassen, then governor of Minnesota. He since has been elected in his own right.

Politics, naturally, is mixed up in labor legislation, including presidential politics—and on both sides. This is having its effect. The senate is full of presidential candidates—and there's one, too, in the White House. They are all watching each other. None wants to get to far off base.

Penicillin Used for Minor Infections.

PENICILLIN is truly a wonder drug. Life-saving when used against many serious infections, it is also an effective weapon against other ailments which though comparatively minor, still cause much trouble and discomfort. Prominent among such disorders are those affecting the eye, ear and nose.

For instance, it is not unusual for the tear glands of the eye to become infected. In the past, treatment usually consisted in cutting open the tear sac and allowing infected material to drain out Now, according to Dr. Cecil C. Jones of Des Moines, Iowa, the infection can very often be cleared up without incision, merely by washing out the tea sac with a penicillin solution.

Another eye infection which can be helped by penicillin is conjunctivitis or inflammation of the ling membrane. However, Dr. Jones believes that the best form of using the penicillin in such cases is as an ointment. This is put into the eye every four hours while the person is awake.

A more serious eye condition is the development of an ulcer or sore on the cornea which is the front part of the eyeball. This is treated by injecting a solution of the penicillin twice a day under the lining membrane of the eyeball. This procedure is somewhat painful so that the eye must first be anesthetized, that is, the sensation in it deadened. The sulfonamide preparations in some instances of corneal ulcer may seem to interfere with the healing process. This is not true of the penicillin solution.

Acute Infections.

Penicillin also has been found helpful in acute infections of the nasal sinuses. The treatment employed by Dr. Jones is first to shrink the lining membranes of the nose and then to put the penicillin solution directly into the sinus. Chronic sinus infections also have been benefited in the same way.

Chronic running ear may also be helped when penicillin solution is put into the ear at three-hour intervals.

Timely Editorial

Synchronize Finances.

Why doesn't the federal government make its tax year correspond with its budget year?

That pertinent question is raised by Harley L. Lutz, professor of public finance at Princeton university, in a publication of the Tax Foundation.

The government's fiscal year runs from July 1 to June 30. Taxes are levied on the basis of the calendar year, except for those few individuals and corporations that regularly use a different fiscal year for their own purposes.

At the very least, this lack of coordination between taxing and spending contributes to confusion in the public mind. This confusion can easily be used for purposes of deception.

For simplicity, the fiscal year ought to be made the same as the calendar year. —Akron Beacon-Journal.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress to Debate Wide Variety Of Labor Restraint and Tax Bills

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taxes, the economic lifeblood of government, occupied the attention of the new 80th congress, eager to get at writing a new labor policy. There was strong Republican opposition to the president's pleas in successive messages against quick tax cutting. Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.), chairman of the house ways and means committee, continued to press for a 20 per cent slash in tax bills for all persons with incomes up to $300,000.

His stand was buttressed by a report of the small business advisory committee of the department of commerce which called for a flat 20 percent cut in individual income taxes. The committee is composed of 18 businessmen from all parts of the country appointed by Henry Wallace. Its report was released without comment by Secretary of Commerce Averill Harriman, Wallace's successor.

One Republican, however, broke ranks, Sen. Wayne Morse (Ore.) said he would rather go out of the senate than deal in a political hypocrisy with those who tell us we can have a 20 per cent cut in taxes."

Cuts in Military Strength.

He charged that tax cuts proposed by party spokesmen would necessitate reducing military strength and lessening this country's influence in Europe. He said:

"Unless statesmen of our country have the political courage to tell Americans about the importance of remaining strong and sharing responsibilities in Europe, the war-is-over attitude will sentence our children to another war.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder reported to congress that the nation "could not afford" a general reduction in taxes.

Snyder said high-level taxes must be maintained to get a budget surplus for debt reduction and also to hold down inflationary pressures—presumably by draining off some of the buying power.

Change of Heart.

Republicans who earlier had talked of ending speedily the excise taxes on liquor, furs, jewelry and other luxuries, had a change of heart. Chairman Knutson of the ways and means committee said that house tax leaders would sponsor quick passage of legislation to continue the wartime excise taxes indefinitely.

The bill, forestalling an automatic rollback of the excise list on July 1 with an annual revenue loss of one and a half billion dollars, will be given precedence over all other tax bills.

Sen. Morse also split with his party on proposed labor policy. A member of the senate labor committee and a former member of the National War Labor Board, he urged congress to give top priority to perfecting the Wagner Act.

"If Republicans continue their anti-labor and fiscal policies," he said, "they will lose both congress and the White House in 1948—and they will give us the worst era of labor unrest in our country."

Other Labor Bills.

Morse's criticism stirred up plenty of trouble in the senate labor committee, headed by Sen. Taft. Taft is co-sponsor with Sen. Ball of Minnesota and Sen. Smith of New Jersey of a measure which among other things, would delay serious strikes 60 days, bar jurisdictional, sympathy and organizational strikes and require unions to file financial statements.

Other senate measures which conceivably might get the right of way over any specific revision of the Wagner Act are bills by Ball to outlaw the closed shop and its modifications and to prohibit industrywide bargaining.

In the House, bills by Rep. Case (R-S. D.) and Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.) would in effect revise the Wagner Act but they are independent measures, not amendments. House leaders expect these two bills to be the foundation of the labor legislative program in their chamber.

At Home

Air Crashes.

On the heels of an airliner crash near Galax, Va., with 18 dead of 19 passengers and crew, congress began a resurvey of the whole aviation picture in an attempt to find out what is wrong.

The senate commerce committee called in the Civil Aeronautics Board for a hearing and considered the advisability of creating a government air safety board separate from CAB.

In the House, Rep. Hinshaw (R-Cal) called for a complete and thorough inquiry. Rep. Rivers (D-SC) said the American people "are horrified and scared to death."

Sen. Brewster (R-Me) said, "The situation is destroying popular confidence. There won't be anybody flying if this keeps on."

* * *

An All-Time High.

Income payments to individuals in November reached an annual rate of $174,200,000,000, according to the Department of Commerce.

The month was the fifth in a row in which income payments, on the department's seasonally adjusted index, exceeded the wartime peak reached in February, 1945.

November payments were registered on the index at 259.3 against a 1935-39 average of 100 and a wartime peak of 245.2.

Alas, Poor Horatio.

Horatio Alger, jr., king of the dime-novel adventure authors who thrilled millions of young Americans with his fabulous "rags to riches" tales, is virtually unknown to today's moppets.

The Children's Aid Society of New York, at whose famous Newsboys' Lodging House Alger lived for many years, said a poll among boys and girls 8 to 14 years old at its seven clubs showed that less than one percent ever had read any of his books.

Abroad

Preliminaries Under Way.

The deputy foreign ministers—representing the United States, France, Russia and Britain—met in London to pave the long rocky road toward peace treaties for Germany and Austria—20 months after the victory in Europe.

Their observations and preliminary recommendations will be turned over to the Big Four chiefs who meet March 10 in Moscow. The German pact would take about two years to draft, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes predicted in his letter of resignation to President Truman, basing his estimate on the time needed to arrive at treaties for the five former Axis satellite nations, Finland, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Italy.

Although the Big Four will play the major role in drafting the two treaties, one of the deputies' big tasks will be to hear suggestions from representatives of the 18 smaller nations which fought Hitler.

Strife In Poland.

For centuries Poland has been the doormat where east meets west in Europe.

A land whose history dates from 966 and a great power from the 14th to the 17 centuries, Poland was partitioned three times in the 18th century by Prussia, Austria and Russia. The last time (1795) wiped it off the map of Europe for more than a century. Reborn as a republic after World War I, it was partitioned again by Nazi Germany and Russia in 1939. The end of World War II saw it emerge again.

But with peace, the Polish government in exile at London and the Lublin government set up under Russian auspices became bitter rivals.

Sunday's elections, it had been hoped, would end internal strife and set Poland up as an independent state under a permanent government freely arrived at. Developments of the last few months, however, have indicated quite the contrary.

Farmer's Diary: "New Book on Farming."

WE SPENT a pleasant weekend at Honey Creek, reading aloud and discussing "Trampling Out the Vintage," by Joseph A. Cocannouer. (University of Oklahome Press. $2.75).

Perhaps this story of forty years from the life of a teacher of agriculture epitomizes the struggle of farming to keep its rightful place in a lasting world civilization.

To his Holland-Dutch mother, "who knew the soil," Cocannouer gives credit for his own inborn urge toward the land.

"My mother rarely read any book except her Bible. But the world of nature in which she lived she could read with a strange intelligence—with every sense in harmony with her nature world . . . And mother was a fighter. 'Nobody ever gets anywhere by givin' up,' she would say. 'You've got to keep right on until everything turns out right' . . . working in her garden for the first time in the spring, barefooted, her slat bonnet pulled far over her face, she would walk back and forth over the soft earth in order to give it a last keen inspection before starting her plantings . . . I have no doubt she had some special sense in those toil-scarred feet of hers . . ."

After working his way at Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college, young Cocannouer began teaching in the log schoolhouses of his own "back country sand hills." He had the novel idea of helping the farmers by teaching scientific farming to their children through what he chose to call 'nature study.' After some years, of trial and error, he gave it up, disillusioned. He was a "young upstart" and they laughed at him. There were no vocational courses in agriculture in those days—no 4-H or Future Farmers clubs. When he was offered the chance to teach in the Philippines, he went.

As head of Indang farm school, he devised a workable system of cooperative farms, with Filipino students. He learned tropical agriculture. Also he visited China, and was deeply impressed by the Chinese methods of soil care.

"From the Chinese," he says, "I learned the true meaning of economy in agriculture. Even the Dutch, with all their efficiency, could not wring from the soil as much as the Chinese had been doing for centuries."

He tells about the thrifty practice of growing three or four crops on the same soil at the same time; about the method of saving every bit of human and animal excrement; about the crude tools deftly used; and he adds, 'We should not adopt Chinese methods of farming—we should adapt many of their principles to our own farming systems."

This is a book for all farm-minded thinkers. It has pertinent criticisms and suggestions regarding 4-H clubs and Future Farmers' work. It is full of lively incidents. Its author has been called, "pioneer, scientist, educator and humanist.'"

My worst criticism is that he has no patience with poetry. He leans over backward to avoid anything "impractical." And so he misses some of the joy that he might better have claimed from this "challenging farming game." But you'll like the book.

Jesus Interviewed by Nicodemus — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—John 3. By Alfred J. Buescher

A Pharisee named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, visited Jesus, saying to Him, "Rabbi, we know that Thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that Thou doest, except God be with him."

Jesus told Nicodemus that except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God, and as Nicodemus did not understand, Jesus went to some pains to explain that one must be born again spiritually.

After this Jesus and His disciples went into the land of Judaea; and Jesus baptized. John the Baptist was also near there and he also was baptizing, for John was not yet cast into prison, but was preaching.

Some of John's disciples questioned him about Jesus and His baptism of many. John answered that he had never said he was the Christ, but that he was sent before Him.

TEACHERS ISSUE STRIKE THREAT

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(U.P.)—The Louisville Federation of Teachers (AFL) will strike Feb. 17, closing all city public schools unless a $500 annual salary increase is promised, the union said today.

Edward R. Johnson jr., president of the newly-formed union, said the members voted unanimously at a closed meeting last night to call the strike unless the board of education "takes favorable action" toward securing the raise. The members also are asking a revised salary schedule.

Thomas J. Wood, school board vice president, wrote the union yesterday that "the board does not feel that it can at this time ask" the city aldermen for supplemental taxes to finance a $500 raise.

The union was organized in December. Unofficial estimates were that the union had about 650 members out of 1,407 teachers.

LITTLE AMERICA REDISCOVERED

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT OLYMPUS IN BAY OF WHALES—(Delayed)—(AP)—The rediscovery of Little America between 20 feet of snow, piled high by six Antarctic winters, was a warm operation.

I was with the discovery party yesterday when it found Admiral Byrd's old camp, near where a base will be set up for the new expedition.

The hike across the three miles of treacherous ice and snow from the bay was like a trek over desert sands, and the exertion made it almost as hot because the feet sink down every few steps.

The old camp of the 1939-41 expedition was perfectly preserved and will be used as an emergency camp in case a rescue party has to remain when the expedition quits Antarctica next spring.

The only damage was to some tunnels, which were partly caved in.

Food Bargains Really Do Exist--It's Merely Matter of Finding 'Em

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Oranges, chuck roast and hamburger appear to be the weekend's food bargains throughout Ohio, a survey incicated today.

Butter was down about ten cents a pound from last week and bacon and ham were continuing their slow drop, reports from 16 cities showed. Pork chops still were very high and few cities had weekend "specials" on center cuts.

Prices were leveling off, however, and bacon cost about as much in Toledo as it did in Gallipolis or Cincinnati. Lima, which had the lowest meat prices in Ohio a month ago, had no startling bargains today.

* * *

ORANGES, which had been predicted to be very scarce this winter, were glutting the market and prices were falling rapidly. Florida oranges in eigh-pound bags ranged from 32 cents at Cincinnati—the lowest in Ohio—to 49 cents in Cleveland. California oranges were 27 cents a dozen at Elyria, Zanesville and Lancaster. Some Columbus stores had them at two dozen for 45 cents.

Bacon, which has been uniformly high in Columbus all week—ranging up to 89 cents a pound for the very best—was 62 cents for major packers' better grades today. Kent stores offered bacon from 59 to 63 cents a pound. It was 59 at Canton, Steubenville, and Cincinnati. Cambridge, Lima and Delaware paid 69 cents.

Chuck roast, mainstay of many an Ohio Sunday dinner, was 45 cents a pound for Grade A beef in 80 per cent of the cities surveyed. Lima had it for 39 cents and it was 55 in Lancaster. One Zanesville store had chuck for 43. In nearby Cambridge it was six cents more a pound.

* * *

SIRLOIN STEAK showed the greatest variance in price, ranging from a high of 65 cents a pound in Cincinnati to 45 cents in Cleveland. Most prices held between 55 and 59 cents a pound.

Center cut pork chops sold for 55 cents in Zanesville, 52 cents in Lima. End cuts were 39 at Elyria, 45 at Ravenna, Mansfield, Dover, and Canton. Independent stores quoted prices up to 75 cents in Columbus.

BENGALS ROLL UP EARLY LEAD TO WIN, 44-37

Mansfield Sophs Lose Preliminary, 24 to 22.

TIFFIN—Mansfield Senior high basketballers rolled up a tremendous lead in the first three quarters and then coasted to a 44 to 37 victory over a hapless Tiffin Columbian combine here last night.

In winning its third straight decision, the Bengal cage machine rolled up a 42 to 15 advantage before Coach Vern Hoffman sent in the second team. The victory was Mansfield's eighth in 12 games and marked the sixth straight defeat for Columbian.

The Mansfield sophomores faded in the last quarter to drop a 24 to 22 decision to the Tiffin reserves. The sophs led at the quarters 9 to 2, 10 to 6, and 16 to 13.

Mansfield showed its best first half offensive work of the season in piling up 18 points in the first quarter and 13 in the second. The Bengals were in front at the first two intermission points 18 to 7 and 31 to 14.

The third quarter was also all Mansfield and the Bengals were in the van 42 to 17 as the final period opened. Including two points made at the close of the third heat, Tiffin rolled up 15 straight points against the subs. Rodney Blahnik broke the spell with a one-hand connection. That made the score 44 to 30 for the Tygers.

Tiffin waxed torrid in the last 70 seconds and splashed home seven points.

Tommy Bloor and Ralph Majors, varsity forwards, led the scoring with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Bloor leads the Tyger point producers with 124 in 12 games.

Last night was the first time this season that Hoffman was able to use his subs for a protracted length of time and the continued bench warming told. Columbian outscored the subs 20 to 2 in the final canto.

The Tygers were much too lax in the business of committing personal fouls. They fouled Tiffin 20 times, Columbian making 16 of 25 free tosses. It would have spelled doom against a tougher opponent.

Chicago Bears Have Their Say

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The Chicago Bears will have their turn at signing an outstanding football player today when they hand the pen to Bob Fenimore of Oklahoma A&M college.

Their crosstown rivals in the National league, the Chicago Cardinals, signed Charlie Trippi yesterday after spirited bidding with the New York Yankees football-baseball combine.

The Bears obtained the right to sign Fenimore in the draw which gives the top team a chance at the year's outstanding player.

Doc Hayfer Scores 12, Komito's Win, 44 to 34.

Komito's Clothiers defeated Myers quintet of Ashland, 44 to 34, last night. Doc Hayfer, Komito pivotman, led the scoring for both teams with 12. E. Myers had 10 for Ashland.

Both teams were tied, 12 to 12, at the half.

Out of State Teams Blast Ohio Colleges

A pair of basketball teams from neighboring states extended long winning strings Friday night against Ohio college opponents. Duquesne of Pittsburgh notched its 11th straight against John Carroll at Cleveland, 59 to 54, and Marshall posted No. 13 at Cincinnati over Xavier, 53 to 41.

In Ohio conference action, Heidelberg's Student Princes, who started the week unbeaten in loop competition, were bumped for their second defeat, Mt. Union turning the trick at Alliance, 51 to 43, and Akron jumped on Wooster, 58 to 34.

Wayne grabbed its first triumph in eight starts by tripping Western Reserve at Detroit, 48 to 29, in a Mid-America conference game. In another M.-A. contest at Cincinnati, the hometown Bearcats won from Ohio university, 41 to 36.

Other Friday night Ohio college scores: Findlay 72, Gannon of Erie, Pa., 55; Bliss Business college of Columbus 49, Rio Grande 43; Bowling Green 60, Baldwin Wallace 44; Oberlin 57, Earlham 46; Miami 60, Miami, Fla., 44.

Bob Hall, Marshall college forward, who was third high scorer in the nation last season, netted 17 points to lead the Thundering Herd to an easy victory over Xavier, which trailed 32-22 at the half and never threatened.

Extension of Duquesne's winning string against John Carroll came harder. The Dukes trailed 25-30 at the intermission, but managed to overcome the Clevelanders' zone defense in the second half when Forward Joe Camic made 18 of the 25 points which gave him individual scoring honors.

Although Ed Holtcamp tossed in 17 points for Heidelberg, his team trailed Mt. Union 23-13 at the half, managed to draw within one point at 31-30, then was completely outclassed in the final quarter.

Three Big Nine Games Slated

CHICAGO —(AP)— Michigan, Indiana and Iowa enter Big Nine basketball action tonight seeking second place in the Western conference race after being deadlocked with two wins and one defeat apiece.

Iowa hits the road for the first time to meet the Hoosiers. Michigan is host to Purdue, which opened its conference bid at Indiana Monday by being walloped 62-46.

In tonight's third conference game, Northwestern goes after its first Big Nine victory, after three setbacks, at Ohio State, which has posted one win in four starts.

Ashland College Travels to Hiram

ASHLAND — Ashland college cagers complete a heavy week's schedule when they travel to Hiram tonight. The Eagles defeated Marietta, 63 to 45. Tuesday and dropped a 65 to 50 decision to Findlay Thursday.

Coach Jimmy Richereek will string along with Captain Vince Barr and Jack Rohrbacker, forwards; Ashlander Charley Bartley, center; and Wesley Peterman and Dal Gardner, guards.

Barr singed the nets for 20 markers against Findlay to boost his point production to 114 for the five Ashland games. The Eagles have won two and lost three.

THERE are all kinds of golf caddies in the world, says Bobby Jones, but the venerable and dignified veterans at the famous St. Andrews course in Scotland are in a class by themselves.

One of these caddies, 75 if he was a day, found himself assigned to an irascible duffer who blamed everybody but himself for his atrocious playing. After five tortuous holes, he stepped up to the tee and sliced his ball at a perfect right angle to the fairway into a dreadful thicket.

"Better play another ball, sir," suggested the caddie. "That one's hopelessly lost."

The duffer said angrily, "You're positively the worst caddie in the world."

The old caddie said quietly, "Oh no, sir, that would be too great a coincidence."

Mrs. Bigelow was seeing her infant grandson for the first time. "You scrumptious, angelic thing," she cooed. "Won't it speak to its little gramikins?" The infant scrowled and muttered, "How the heck do you expect me to talk when I'm only two months old?"

Mount Wilson in California, site of one of the world's largest telescopes, was named after Benjamin Davis Wilson, who broke the trail up the mountain in search for timber for the making of wine casks.

Shaffer Announces Repair Program

NEW HIGHWAY CHIEF PLANS MAY 15 START

$10,000,000 Will Be Cost of Repairing, Resurfacing.

COLUMBUS—(NS)—A ten-million dollar highway resurfacing and repair program, to get under way May 15, has been announced by Highway Director Murray D. Shaffer.

Following his first meeting with his new division engineers and department heads Friday afternoon, Shaffer said five millions would be spent on resurfacing contracts and four million for maintenance and repair and surface treatment contracts.

The remaining million dollars worth of work will be done by the department's own forces.

"We hope to get at least 85 per cent of the contracts before May 15, the beginning of the construction season," Shaffer said. "Sales (the awarding of contracts) will be conducted from Feb. 1 to May 1."

The director said the volume of work projected was about the same as during 1946, but that the program would get underway earlier.

Shaffer, former Mansfield service-safety director, was superintendent of the Ashland division of the state highway department and right-of-way superintendent for the department before he took over the highway directorship last Monday.

Filibuster Bill Baces Filibuster

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The biggest filibuster of them all seemed imminent today; its target—a Republican bill to outlaw filibusters.

Sen. William F. Knowland, R., Calif., believed an anti-filibuster bill could be placed before the senate next week and he said he was ready to ask around-the-clock sessions to bring it to a vote.

Southern Democrats, foremost devotees of the filibuster, made it plain, however, that they were getting ready to talk endlessly against any bill that would remove their right to do just that. For them, the filibuster has been an effective weapon against such legislation as fair employment practices bills and anti-poll tax bills.

Sen. Irving Ives, R., N. Y., said he expected "the most extensive filibuster in the history of the country." The only way to break it, he said, is "just keep on sitting."

Sen. Wayne L. Morse, R., Ore., agreed that the senate should be held in continuous session if necessary.

Knowland's bill would make a majority of the senate—49 votes—enough to end debate on any bill obviously in the process of being talked to death. It now takes a two-thirds vote to limit debate

FEW OHIO VETS SEEKING JOBS

With 713,000 veterans either employed, in training or in school or college, the demobilization of an estimated 788,100 World War II ex-servicemen in Ohio was virtually completed today, Charles H. Jones, administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation and Wenlell B. Edgerley, Veterans employment representative in Ohio, reported.

The two officials reported that out of the total number discharged, 620,200 are employed 92,900 are in schools and only 54,000 are seeking work through the Ohio State Employment Service.

Not included in the table were veterans not in the labor market. These included ex-servicemen unable to work due to war-incurred injuries, those in hospitals, those who have retired and those not currently seeking work.

During the 12 months ended Nov. 30, the number of World War II veterans employed by large manufacturers in Ohio increased from 10 per cent of their working force in November, 1945, to almost 30 per cent of their working force on Nov. 15, 1946.

In 1947, the local office of the Ohio State Employment Service throughout the state face the task of finishing the job of returning all unemployed veterans to civilian employment, the state officials said.

HUMMEL PICKS VETS

COLUMBUS —(NS)— Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel appointed two war veterans Friday to posts as supervisors in his office. George F. Sawyer, an ex-Marine of Westerville, will be supervisor of photostats, and Thomas Doll of Cincinnati, a World War II field artilleryman, will be supervisor of records in the corporation department.

$25,000 GRANT TO OSU

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Swift & Company of Chicago has awarded a $25,000 grant-in-aid to Ohio State university to finance a five-year research project on poultry breeding, it was announced today.

Sugar Price Goes Higher, But It's Still Sweet Stuff

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The retail price of sugar will soon go up one-fourth of a cent a pound.

This increase will mean about one cent on every five-pound package of sugar, a spokesman for the Office of Temporary Controls said. The increase will add $25,000,000 a year to the nation's food bill.

The increase results from an 8½ cent per hundred pounds boost in the price of raw sugar and an increase of 20 cents a hundred pounds in the price of refined sugar. The pre-retail increases go into effect today.

Oil Claims Taken To Supreme Court

WASHINGTON—(NS)—The justice department has placed before the supreme court legal arguments in support of the bitterly-contested federal claim to submerged oil lands off the California coast.

The government filed with the high court a 58-page brief, signed by Attorney General Tom Clark, which will form the basis for oral arguments on the tidelands suit against the state of California, expected to be heard early in March.

Liquor Chief Bans Bondsmen

COLUMBUS—(NS)—Professional bondsmen were evicted today from their "offices" in the department of liquor control building in Columbus.

Liquor Director Stanley B. Cofall said that bondsmen had been soliciting business in the building's halls from persons needing bonds for permit applications. He declared that it was a bad practice.

SPRINGFIELD FIRES ITS CITY MANAGER

SPRINGFIELD — (NS) — City Manager Harold M. Fross was ousted from office last night at a heated special meeting of the Springfield city commission.

The action climaxed a disagreement between Fross and Mayor Virgil Ballentine that broke out into a verbal battle last week.

Mayor Ballentine offered the motion to remove Fross. Ballentine was a member of the majority bloc of the commission that selected Fross for the office last January.

The commission appointed City Engineer William E. Lucas as acting city manager, effective immediately.

Before his appointment to head the city government a year ago, Fross had served 20 years as Clark county auditor.

800 Youngsters Get Lesson In Safety

WALTER WINCHELL

Winning Horse Loses

WINCHELLEBRITIES: Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey, former FBI chief Spencer Drayton (and thousands of others) spellbound as F. B. Eye is disqualified from winning the Damon Runyon Memorial (feature race) at Tropical Park. It was 4 to 1 . . . Weathercock inherited the stewards' verdict (on a claimed foul of all the jocks), paying $69.30! Runyon would have loved it . . . Beryl Davis, who delighted GIs with her thrushing via the British networks. They encouraged her to try the U. S.; she arrived on the America Tuesday . . . Mrs. FDR shaking hands with a passerby admirer near the Sherry-Netherland . . . Lovely Ingrid Bergman handsom-cabbing thru the Park . . . Gracie Fields 'aving 'er 4 p. m. tea at Rumpelmayer's in the St. Moritz . . . J. E. Ayrhart, millionaire mayor at Campbellford, Ontario, getting the chilliest glare from a subway cashier to whom he offered $100 bill (to change!). For the jitney ride.

* * *

Sallies in Our Alley: A starlet just in from Movietown was belittling Broadway at Leon & Eddie's . . . "There are," she said, "more phonies here than out there" . . . "Of course," yawned Sherry Britton, "you mean now" . . . Two pretties were introduced at the Latin Quarter . . . "Didn't I meet you in Miami with your husband?" asked the first . . . "No," said the other, "with yours."

* * *

Midtown Vignette: Norman Cordon is the 6'4 basso of the Met. He is also the top male singer in the revived "Street Scene" . . . Norman believes in direct action . . . He was dining in a midtown spot when a clunk at the next table slandered FDR and boosted Hitler . . . Cordon went over, grabbed the nuisance in his arms, carried him to the street and dumped him into the gutter, saying: "You're spoiling my dinner, Adolf!"

* * *

Memos of a Midnighter: Local reporters waiting to see if Pearl Lusk will bother to inquire how Mrs. Ruocco is getting along since she shot her with that camera-gun. They say she never once inquired about her victim while in custody . . . Has Kirsten Flagstad signed with Geo. Engles' new concert office? . . . Larry Marvin is being touted as a "find" by the Embassy where he auditioned. . . . Midtown reporters tell of an E. 51st St. detective who uses such highfalutin' talk. He asked one scribe: "Is that a certitude on your part?" . . . Latest gimmick in the Broadway photo emporiums is Men of Distinction cut-outs. You put yer kisser in the hole and come out looking like the geezers in the ads . . . Truman's admiration for Sec'y of State Marshall amounts to hero worship. He is said to have referred to Marshall as "the greatest living American". . . . Alan Ladd doesn't know when he's well off; just bought a coast night club.

* * *

New York Novelette: Justin McCarthy, the young lone-wolf stick-up fool (who was collared last week), is well known to Broadwaysenheimers . . . He sold several of them plenty of "shares" in an electronic and helicopter firm which flopped . . . Most of his suckers are no little miffed with Justin because "he didn't at least apologize" with some of the loot he got away with—sticking up night club patrons in their cars—as they waited for lights to change . . . He almost talked a famed radio star into starting a manufacturing company with him . . . One of his stock victims was ready to tell the gendarmes about him six months ago (which would have ended his career of crime before it started), but Justin talked him out of it . . . The irony of it: Had he gone to the hoosegow then the term would have been short. Now he may spend his life in jail.

* * *

Manhattan Murals: The deserted trolley tracks on 59th St. with the Columbus Circles under their eyes . . . The Riverside Dr. milkman who does his chores in the frigid weather with no coat. Just undershirt and trousers. Exhibitionist . . . The lad in the NBC newsroom named Bonaparte, who says he is a descendant of Napoleon . . . The gal ticket seller at the Pennsy Station, who went to school with Movietown's Marie McDonald, still her closest chum. The walls of the ticket booth are lined with Marie's photos . . . Dunhill, famed for making pipes, has exactly five of them in its huge window space (on Vth near 50th). Everything else from ladies' pocketbooks on up . . . Sign in a 42nd St. stationer's: "Our fountain pens just write."

* * *

The Late Watch: Seven contribs submitted this (on the story about Gov. Dewey's mother losing her purse while attending the Republican State Assembly): "Had enough?" . . . The Runyon Cancer Fund hit $115,000 Tuesday . . . Mark Hellinger's new flicker, "Swell Guy" (due at the Winter Garden), will turn over the premiere receipts to that fund . . . Tropical Park track reports attendance was up 50,000, but the "take" is down 10 percent . . . What happened to Betty Forsling shouldn't happen to a Betty Forsling . . . Quote from the Columbia Pictures chief (after that lawsuit): "You don't need an enemy if you got a Hungarian for a friend" . . . The police have notified all night clubs they must be closed and empty at 4 a. m. This is very funny considering most joynts are empty much earlier . . . Fawcett mags report they will stop buying cartoons and quips that poke fun at any race . . . George Bourke, Miami Herald critic, reports "the improved routines" (which get bigger laughs) of comedians who did their own laundry . . . Kindly note, if you happen to be a comediocrity.

Three Reject Job

SINCE LAST MONTH when Eugene Meyer, the first president of the World bank, resigned, the post has been offered to three men. All three have declined. In the case of Graham Towers, the governor of the Bank of Canada, the Canadian government is understood to have taken the view that because the United States is making much the largest subscription and because the bonds of the bank must be sold principally to Americans, the president should be an American.

The post has also been offered to Allan Sproul, the president of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, and to John J. McCloy, who was the assistant secretary of war under Stimson.

After careful consideration, Sproul and McCloy refused, and the bank, which means so much to the whole world, is in an embarrassing position. The question is why, when they look into it, men turn away from so honorable and important an office.

* * *

THE REASON is that while the president must take the chief responsibility for the success of the bank, he does not in law have power which corresponds with his responsibility. This condition was hidden while Eugene Meyer was the president. For Meyer had a unique personal position. He had the complete confidence of the financial community; he had served with great distinction in public life, and he had acquired high prestige in Washington.

As long as he was president of the bank, the question as to whether the president had enough real authority did not arise.

It has arisen for his successor. As the bank is organized, all its powers are vested in a board of governors. The chairman of the board is the secretary of the treasury, John W. Snyder. The powers of the board are delegated to 12 executive directors, five of them appointed by the governments which are the largest shareholders, the other seven elected by the other governments. These executive directors, unlike the governors, are paid officials who devote their whole time to the bank. The American executive director is Emilio G. Collado.

* * *

THE PRESIDENT of the bank is elected by these executive directors. He becomes their chairman but he has no vote except in case of a tie. He may be removed "when the executive directors so decide."

The American executive director, Collado, who owes his appointment to the administration, is a powerful figure in the bank. The voting power of each country is proportionate to its subscription, and under this system the United States has 37 of 100 votes, the United Kingdom 15, France 5.5, Canada 4, and so forth. It is Collado, not the president, who casts the American vote. Moreover, he casts it under the guidance of the secretaries of state, treasury, commerce and the chairman of the Federal Reserve System.

The president not only has no vote, except in case of tie, but he is supposed to be a kind of neutral figure, a purely international official, and to have no connection with any government.

In reality then, it is Collado, the American executive director, and not the president of the bank, who connects the work of the bank with the American government and the American people.

* * *

THIS WOULD be all very well if it were not for the fact that the success of the bank depends so much on the United States.

Most of its bonds must be sold through American banks to American investors. The future of those bonds is intimately related to the financial and commercial policies of the United States government, on whether in the years to come these policies are such that the United States becomes in fact a creditor country which enables other countries to earn the dollars to repay their loans.

Unless the president of the bank can count upon the support of the American government and is assured that his advice will be taken very seriously by the administration and by congress he cannot hope to do what is expected of him. If his real authority is only that which he has legally, he is only an administrative officer and a figurehead. Yet the world will hold him responsible for the success of the bank. That is, I believe, the reason why it has become so difficult to find a man qualified for the high post who will accept it.

Bill Would Force Strike Arbitration

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Rep. Gerald W. Landis (R-Ind), said today that he would introduce a bill Monday providing compulsory arbitration of strikes imperiling the national welfare.

Under the proposed measure, if either side refused to accept compulsory arbitration the government would be authorized to seize the strikebound plant.

Landis, second ranking Republican on the house labor committee, said the bill would also return to the states authority to handle "minor" strikes.

VETERANS MAP PROGRAM FOR HOMECOMING

County Group to Hear Plans for Celebration In July.

Plans for a county-wide veterans' homecoming celebration, to be sponsored by the Joint Veterans' Commission of Richland county, will be presented to that group for consideration at its next meeting, Jan. 30.

A broad outline of the program, which will be approved or amended by the commission, were mapped by a special joint committee of veterans' organization members of the commission, last night in the DAV club rooms. Charles Prosser, DAV commander, is committee chairman.

Tentative plans call for the celebration to be held July 4 to 6. The program ranges from the usual Fourth of July celebration through a pattern of parades, memorial services, sporting contests between the various county veteran posts, and dancing in the evenings. Plans call for the use of North Lake park and with the consent of the manager, Harry L. Denis, the Coliseum.

Prosser stressed that "this endeavor must be county-wide, enlisting the support of all labor, business, civic, industrial, religious, veteran and social organizations to assist in putting on a celebration that the people and the veterans of the county will long remember."

This train will leave Mansfield at 7:30 a. m. throughout the week, making all stops that 118-120 made between Mansfield and Pittsburgh.

She was born in Fitchfield township, Huron county, and had lived in this vicinity most of her life.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary Pond of Rogers, Ark., and a number of nieces and nephews. Her husband, Scott Mackin, died in 1942.

MURDER BILLS NAME 3 WOMEN

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—(INS)—Second-degree murder indictments against three women were among 17 true bills returned today by the Belmont county grand jury. Two of them are accused of killing their husbands.

Those named in the murder indictments were:

Mrs. Laverne Minette of Maynard, charged with shooting her sleeping husband; Mrs. Ethel Bess of Bellaire, who allegedly shot her husband, and Mrs. Elizabeth Jones of Yorkville, charged with the fatal stabbing of a Martins Ferry woman.

READY FOR SAFETY SHOW—These young Mansfielders eagerly scanned the marquee of the Park theater this morning prior to the start of the Chamber of Commerce safety show. The event, second in a series of four shows sponsored by the Safety Council, drew more than 800 grade school children. Left to right in the foreground are brothers John and Kenny Northrup, rear 168 Blanche street; Ralph Churchill, 142 North Weldon avenue, and Ralph Jones, 141 North Weldon avenue.—(N-J staff photo by Bill Graham)

Choral Society Hears Plans For Expansion, Winter Concert

Steps to enlarge the Mansfield Choral society and present a late winter concert were taken at a dinner meeting of members last night at the Grace Episcopal church. Paul Old, president of the group, presided.

The society, under the direction of J. Frederick Wolf, is planning a pre-Lenten concert to be given in February. Enlargement of the chorus is expected to be completed for rehearsals for the concert.

Copies of the constitution, recently adopted, were distributed among the 26 at the dinner. The society has a three-fold purpose. It will study choral music and present musical programs. It will promote the development and encouragement of young musicians, particularly in Mansfield, and it will stress the support of civic musical activities in general.

Present officers of the group, besides Old, are Mrs. John Robert Brook, vice president, and Mrs. John Carr, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Henry Howard is the accompanist.

Last night's dinner arrangements were in charge of Forest Maring. Dinner was served by the women of the church.

Rev. Samuel U. J. Peard, rector of the church, and Mrs. Peard, were dinner guests.

MARTIN N. DOBBS DIES AFTER FALL

Born March 18, 1869, in Weller township, Mr. Dobbs came to Mansfield as a small boy and spent the rest of his life here. He was a member of the Central Methodist church and a 50-year member of the K. of P. lodge. Mr. Dobbs was last employed at the Ohio Brass company.

Surviving are his wife, Metta S.; a son, Glenn O. Dobbs of Cleveland; three daughters, Mrs. Miriam Hoffman, Mrs. E. Corson Blower and Mrs. Roy E. Winters, all of Mansfield, and four grandchildren.

The body is at the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Monday at 1 p. m. in charge of Rev. J. Frank Stewart, pastor of the Central Methodist church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

TRUMAN NODS TO FORRESTAL

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Truman's favorite for appointment as the new secretary of national defense appeared today to be James Forrestal, present secretary of the navy.

Mr. Truman, however, does not have to make up his mind for a couple of months—the time congress probably will require to enact legislation creating the new department of national defense. The situation may change by that time.

The three secretaries to serve as civilian chiefs of the fighting outfits are expected to be:

Secretary of the army: Present Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, of New York.

Secretary of the navy: Present Undersecretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, of New Hampshire.

Secretary of the air force: present Assistant Secretary of War for Air W. Stuart Symington, of Missouri.

5 DRAW FINES IN CITY COURT

Five men booked on fighting and assault and battery charges were fined a total of $65 and costs today in municipal court.

Three Mt. Gilead youths pleaded guilty to assault and battery charges filed by Eugene L. Whisler, 819 Springmill street. They were fined $15 and costs each. The trio included Harold West, 19; Donald L. Levings, 20, and Donald E. Rice, 22.

Whisler told police that the three dragged him from a car and beat him. The youths told officers that the fight started when Whisler "called them names."

Fined $10 and costs each on fighting charges were Woodrow Wilson, Geddes avenue, and Charles Neese, 92 East Fourth street. Both pleaded guilty.

Charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, Luke Feagin, 75 Raymond avenue, was ordered to appear in municipal court Monday. Bond was set at $500. Police said Feagin was driving a car with its lights out on North Main street early today.

Bilbo's Operation Set for Next Week

NEW ORLEANS — (U.P.) — Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo will undergo an operation for cancer of the mouth early next week, according to Dr. Alton Ochsner, who said he was watching the Mississippi senator's reaction to penicillin treatments.

MORE SPACE FOR PARKING WOULD HELP!

hicles, the police are wrestling with an impossible situation," he has said.

Boals points out that thousands of vehicles use the downtown streets but that there are only 400 spaces in which to park them.

"Cities can't buy land on the open market because of the danger of taxpayers' suits. There seems to be some question that conversion of land for that purpose, without the benefit of this law, would be illegal," Addison declares.

* * *

Could Abolish Parking.

The bill, which Addison said grew out of an extensive study made by the legislature-created urban redevelopment commission, also reemphasizes the complete power of a city to control traffic and parking, "even to abolishing all parking on streets."

While admitting the urgent need for additional parking space in Mansfield, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn says he wonders if the city should get into the parking business.

"You may assume that the parking privilege on a municipal lot would be free but it still would be paid for by the taxpayers," the mayor said.

"Such a business is not normally a governmental function, such as fire and police protection and water, sewer and lighting services.

"However, if the people want it and if a downtown site were available at a reasonable price and the city's investment could be liquidated in a reasonable time, I would not be opposed to it."

Mayor Vaughn said he had once investigated two possible sites for downtown parking lots and found that one was priced at $70,000 and the other at $100,000.

"That's a lot of money for a parking lot and I doubt that they would be economically sound. There just aren't any reasonably priced downtown locations in Mansfield," he said.

* * *

"Would Pay Out."

Addison's bill would even give cities the right to turn condemned land over to a private operator for private profit.

"There's nothing wrong with private enterprise and private profit. The operator would lease the land from the city at monthly or yearly rental fees and the city thus would recover its investment while relieving the parking problem," Addison says.

Boals has estimated that 50 per cent of the vehicles in the downtown area during rush hours is "simply circling around looking for parking places."

Farm Bureau Men Attend Meeting

Richland county was represented by nine Farm Bureau managers at the state managers' conference in Columbus Thursday and Friday.

Back from the conference are R. A. Williams, Bellville branch manager; Howard Forbes, Lexington branch; Howard Stover, Shiloh branch; Carl Stover, Shelby branch; Carl Smith, acting Mansfield branch manager; Dean Tolles, Mansfield machinery manager; Howard Darling, county petroleum manager; Clarence Kanady, Mansfield feed manager, and Gail Hammett, county organizational manager.

Canton Gets Aid For Training Vets

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The federal works agency announced approval today of applications by the Canton, Ohio, board of education for surplus government-owned furniture and equipment to facilitate enrollment of veterans under the GI Bill of Rights.

In its applications, the Canton board estimated that the additional facilities would enable it to offer courses of education or training to 214 veterans, compared with 108 now being served and 166 expected to be enrolled this spring.

MEET AN EXPERT—

One or a dozen Blindfolded or not, Mansfield chess and checker players can match their skill against an expert Saturday at the YMCA. Newell W. Banks, of Detroit, one of the nation's 10 best chess players, will be guest at the Mansfield Chess and Checker club meeting at 7:30 p. m. Banks, who has played the best in the land in the ordinary and the "blindfolded" manner, will play simultaneous games of chess or checkers against all "takers." All chess and checker players of Mansfield are invited. Bring your own sets, if possible, club members urged.

PREVENTATIVES—

Keeping the hair clean and short helps to prevent scalp ringworm, Dr. Fred O. Tonney reports. The disease is prevalent in the county, particularly among children under 12 years of age. He advises a good hair washing once a week. Keeping the hair cut short helps, too, he said. Dr. Tonney is attempting to obtain a special ultra-violet lamp to be used in spotting ringworm cases.

HE GETS 'EM, TOO—

Deputy Sheriff Foster F. Palmer today was sharing the county's fox bounty fund by ridding farmers of six more foxes. Palmer displayed the feet of five red foxes and one gray fox for inspection of Deputy Sheriff Glenn C. Humphrey.

HOW ABOUT A DIME?—

In stores, shops and industrial plants throughout Mansfield today you'll be seeing little coin boxes backed up by posters advertising the March of Dimes to raise funds to combat the ravages of infantile paralysis. With 25,000 cases of this disease in the United States in 1946—the worst epidemic since 1916—funds were nearly exhausted. In Richland county, one case, out of four reported, required local funds and almost exhausted the $2,925.34 fund. So W. H. McClellan, county drive chairman, urges countians to "build up the local and national fund. Give double so that it may never have to be said that too little was given too late."

MOTHER PLACED ON PROBATION

Mrs. Arthena Burdine, 27, of Trimble road, who was returned from Ft. Wayne, Ind., yesterday by Sheriff Frank E. Robinson to answer a charge of child abandonment, today was placed on probation to the Richland County Child Welfare bureau for one year by Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer.

"It was unfortunate that Mrs. Burdine had to be brought back on a court order, when she has a nerve ailment and in need of a doctor," Judge Cramer said.

The court referred the case of a 15-year-old Mansfield girl who ran away to Kentucky, gave her age as 21 and was married without parents' consent, to the Richland county common pleas court for annulment.

Judge Cramer also directed that the girl return to school and that the parents report back to the court in a week.

First Week's Tax Revenue Declines

Sales tax collections in Richland county were off to a weak start in 1947 after reaching a record high last year, the state treasurer's report showed today.

Retail sales in the county during the week ended Jan. 4 produced only $10,148 as compared with $10,407 during the corresponding week last year.

KIDDIES SEE MOVIES ON HOW TO STAY ALIVE

Pictures, Acts Presented At C. of C. Show Today At Park Theater.

More than 800 Mansfield grade school children probably will watch street crossings more closely from now on.

This morning they saw some of the results of carelessness and how to avoid traffic and pedestrian accidents at the safety show, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, at the Park theater.

Although primarily of a serious nature, the show was not without entertainment. The lighter side of the show was provided by Kenny Hoffman's orchestra, Dan Caper's juggling act and George LeComte as master of ceremonies.

Caper and LeComte, Ringside cafe entertainers, volunteered their services for the show, as did the orchestra members, projectionists and stage hands. Use of the theater was also donated along with the public address system.

Featured in the second-in-a-series of four safety shows by the Chamber, were a narration, "It's Wanton Murder," by Lowell Thomas, famous newscaster, followed by RKO's "This Is America" series on home and traffic safety.

"Intermission" speakers were Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals and Joseph Prewitt, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

The first safety show for school children was held in September. The third in the series is expected to be offered in the spring.

INFLATION EBBS, MARGINS BACK

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Signs of official confidence that inflation is on the ebb were seen today in a decision by the federal reserve board to permit renewal of margin trading on securities exchanges.

Beginning Feb. 1 traders in stocks and bonds may put up 15 per cent cash and 25 per cent credit instead of 100 per cent cash as required by a rule in effect since last January.

Security prices have fallen to about the level of a year ago, and Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles said in announcing the decision "it now appears that inflation has largely run its course."

The development accompanied a nationwide drop in prices for food and many kinds of goods, a three-week shrinkage in the amount of money in circulation, and a census bureau report that civilian employment during December fell below the 57,000,000 mark for the first time since last June.

Eccles said keeping inflation in check depends on continued high taxation, reduction of the national debt, avoidance of strikes and wage increases which lead to higher prices, and a lowering of prices "now out of line."

WOMEN SCUFFLE; FALL FROM WINDOW

Two women suffered minor injuries last night when they fell through a window at Charlie Kee's laundry, 31 East Third street, during an altercation, police reported today.

The women, who fell approximately eight feet, were Mattie Hess, 161 West Sixth street, who received abrasions and lacerations, and Louise Scott, 228 North Franklin avenue, lacerations of the right leg. Both were released after treatment at General hospital.

City Promised Ideal Weather

Sunday drivers will probably have nice weather for their mid-winter jaunt tomorrow, for the weatherman was in a good humor today.

Ohioans may expect "fairly pleasant and mild weather" for the weekend, he said, adding that temperatures would range between 40 and 50 with clear skies overhead.

Noon temperature edged up into the "mild for January" reading at 38 degrees, five degrees above yesterday's high.

RINEHART HEADS SCHOOL BOARD

Lewis L. Rinehart, Sandusky township, today was elected to head the Richland county board of education for 1947 at a reorganization meeting in the county superintendent's office. He was moved up from the office of the vice president.

Fred Dill, Bellville, was elected vice president and Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, was returned as clerk of the board.

Lester Lantz of Franklin township is the retiring president.
